FALCANNA®

NOTES FROM THE FARM...

"The Rondeauxs spent years learning the craft of organic cannabis cultivation while building personal connections that gave them access to some of the finest genetics in the world."

"Over the years, Falcanna has grown into a staple on retail shelves across Washington State, and the support of customers and retailers alike has made the raptor rehabilitation and conservation a reality. After more than a decade and a half of building something from the ground up, the Rondeauxs are just getting started. Falcanna remains fully independent, founder-owned, and driven by the same two people who fell in love over falconry and built a brand the Pacific Northwest can be proud of. This is not just a business. It is their life's work, and every product on the shelf reflects that."
